

Coulton Bunney

coultonbunney.com • cabunney@gmail.com • (724) 678-0241

Experience

Flatiron Health New York, NY

Senior Director of Product Design

Jan 2020 – present

Director of Product Design

Jun 2017 – Jan 2020

Built a team of sixteen designers working across all parts of Flatiron's business. Established career ladder and processes to enable continued success, growth and happiness of team.

Lead Product Designer

May 2015 – Jun 2017

Joined as first designer, leading user research and product design. Helped launch a new clinical trial management tool called OncoTrials, the first design refresh of Flatiron's legacy electronic health record used by 1 in 5 U.S. oncologists, and a design system called Atrium that now supports all Flatiron products.

Lumo BodyTech Palo Alto, CA

Lead UX Designer

Jul 2013 – May 2015

Led user research and design of iPhone application visualizing daily posture and activity data gathered from the Lumo Lift sensor, a wearable device developed to help alleviate chronic back-pain by retraining a user's posture.

UX Consultant

Oct 2012 – Jul 2013

Informed K12 Palo Alto, CA

Co-founder

Mar 2012 – Oct 2012

Along with two other cofounders, worked with teachers, administrators, and IT departments to understand and develop a solution to meet the needs for a paperwork management platform in K-12 schools.

Education

Stanford University

B.S. Symbolic Systems 2009 – 2013

Minor, Human Biology

Articles

Flatiron: Increasing the Design Baseline in Oncology

Mar 2020

The Three Questions You Must Ask When Running a Design Sprint

Dec 2017